

Project Review Service

Would you like to know ...

- If it's worth investing more money in your project?
- If your project team has the skills and qualities to deliver?
- If project processes and procedures are reducing or creating risk?
- If project design, coding and implementation are of sufficient quality?
- If you have the right documentation in place?

We can answer these questions and more.

Our Project Review Service provides a clear objective assessment of your project's state, including:

A summary of the project business case including high level requirements, vision and budget

An analysis of the team using our Aptitude and Appetite model of skills, roles and experience

A thorough design, code and system review against industry best practice

A comprehensive documentation check

A survey of stakeholders

A summary of methodologies employed and consideration of their fitness for purpose

How the project is performing day-to-day, and how and to whom is this communicated

How is the Review approached?

We request a documentation set at the start of our engagement

We identify and interview all the key people, ideally face-to-face

We review code, design and implementation deliverables against industry standards

We review all documentation and project communications

We present our report, and meet you to discuss it
